This forum is a place for information and resources to help those who are bereaved. The resources are practical and together we hope to build these to support those who may be organising a funeral and dealing with the death of someone close.

We also are interested in discussing death and grief. This is such a huge thing for us to deal with and it is sometimes very difficult to talk about with other people.

In this forum we will be open and honest and in that way hope to support each other.

Charles and Maxine decided to put the forum together when the Corvid 19 virus meant that we couldn't open our Death Cafe. We are hoping that this forum will be a useful alternative and are really open to suggestions as to how this can be helpful to others.
